

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for producing an extruded sheet material wherein a polymeric material is formed 5 into a sheet and a variety of materials are incorporated into the extruded material prior to hardening.
The sheet materials produced incorporate, either sheet, filament or particulate matter onto either side of the finished product, allowing for great variability in the finished product.